Safaris, sports, summer camp, scary things slated for reading club

Hooperston children can go on safari, attend a sports camp and go to summer camp all without leaving town.

Those are just some of the adventures planned for children who have just completed preschool to those just out of sixth grade during the Hooperston Public Library's Summer Reading Club, "Camp-Read-A-Lot."

The club begins at 2 p.m. Monday, said children's librarian Carol Arnold. Children are asked to bring a cardboard car made from a box, to be used on safari.

While all club members will meet together on Monday, during the rest of the four-week program, they will be divided by age.

Following safari week will be weeks devoted to summer camp, sports and scary things.

The primary focus of the club is reading, but that is not the only thing. "It's to encourage reading over the summer and to have fun," Arnold said.

It will be fun not only for the children, but also for Arnold. "I have as much fun doing it as they do," she said, adding her participation will be hands-on. "For example, we'll have a sleeping bag roll. "They'll probably want me to do it...and I will," she said.

Prizes will also be awarded to students. Any camper who reads more than 10 books will, during August, receive the Disney Channel free from Hooperston Cable.

McDonald's is donating coupons for every five books read, and local merchants are donating other items. "Everybody's going to get a prize of some kind," Arnold said.

Each time a child attends a session, he may register to win a new sleeping bag, which will be given away at the end of the program.

Arnold expects approximately 300 children to take part in the program "and I'll take every one of them," she said.

Besides bringing a cardboard car Monday, a special guest and a movie are scheduled

The rest of the week, students should dress as a favorite animal that might be spotted on safari, or in a safari outfit. Children should not buy anything special, but use their imagination.

Other activities will include a story, film, "Empty the Waterhole" game and refreshments.

Children who just completed grades 3-6 will meet Tuesday. On Thursday, youngsters just out of first and second grades will meet, followed on Friday by preschoolers and kindergarten students.

All sessions will be held from 2-3 p.m.
